

Yang Fei, MSc, PhD candidate (Supervisor: Dr Hengjin Dong)

Yang Fei is doctoral student (cand. Dr. sc. Hum.) trained in Economics at Heidelberg University. She graduated with distinction as a Medical Doctor (preventive medicine) in 2004 from Fudan University in China and obtained a master degree in Epidemiology and Biostatistics at Fudan University in 2007.

After graduated in 2007, she worked in Department of TB control and prevention, Shanghai CDC more than one year. She was a coordinator in TB control program for migration population in Shanghai which granted by The Global Fund. Her professional activities included project coordination, training and quality control. She has also worked as a data manager in clinical research (Phase III studies in the field of metabolic disorders) in the pharmaceutical industry between 2008 and 2010.

Since Aug. 2010 she works as a junior researcher in ISSC project taking responsibility for feasibility and acceptability evaluation of the project whilst undertaking her doctoral research in the frame work of Work Package 6 of ISSC.