TEACHING EXPERIENCE

1) Medical Students (graduate teaching)

1996 - today Graduate teaching (medical students), Under the HeiCuMed program, HEIDELBERG MEDICAL SCHOOL

- developed as convener a three week full time module on Public Health (module leader): Health economics, prevention, health services delivery, health systems
- Infectious diseases

1993-2/96 TUFTS UNIVERSITY, MD-MPH program
As associate clinical professor, taught the module “International Health” for students in the MPH/MD program.

2. Postgraduate teaching (M.Sc. and doctoral levels)

2002 today - Graduate doctoral program “GK273 Epidemiology of infectious and non-communicable diseases and their interaction”, HEIDELBERG UNIVERSITY
(Coordinator: Heiko Becher)

taught epidemiological and demographic field methods, health outcomes assessment. Supervised three doctoral students from the Grad. College.

2005 today - M.Sc. of International Public Health, HEIDELBERG UNIVERSITY
Course director

team development of curriculum, based on M.Sc. Community Health and Health Management, taught from 1986 through 2004.

Supervision of 29 M.Sc. theses between 1996 an 2007.

The course covers the field of public health viewed from an international angle
It is built in a modular way: a base module of 20 ECTS is compulsory for all, thereafter the course splits in two tracks:

- 1) European track (within the TropEd network of 29 European Universites): exchange of at least 15 ECTS of mutually accredited courses with a European partner university, M.Sc. (20 ECTS) at Heidelberg University
- 2) Heidelberg track – this allows the student to take the entire course at Heidelberg University. 20 ECTS points of short two weeks teaching module can be picked from a menu of currently 11 courses.

Students in both tracks need to write a dissertation (20 ECTS).

The course is offered on with a tuition which is gradually covering the full costs of teaching.

2002-2004 M.Sc. of Health Economics –course director
HEIDELBERG UNIVERSITY and NEW ECONOMICS UNIVERSITY, HANOI

Developed and taught 20% of new course

Leading to a Heidelberg University M.Sc. degree

- ⇒ This is a full time one-year course on health economics, taught by Heidelberg University faculty, funded by The World Bank. Our and our Vietnamese partners' perspective is to perpetuate the course as a joint degree building on modern technology of distant teaching

Since 2002 Short courses (“advanced modules”) 2 wks = 3 ECTS
Course director

- Health care financing and insurance
- Leadership and change management
- Climate change and human health

These courses are stand-alone teaching units, but can also be enrolled in as part of the accredited European M.Sc. Intl. Hlth (s.o) as modules

1991- 2/96 HARVARD SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Guest lecturer:

- (i) “Geographical information systems - a tool for decision making for health planners and managers” in the executive summer course “Management of Health Care in Developing Countries” (course director: Paul Campbell).
