

Title: Adopting the “health-in-all-policies” approach in addressing the post-2015 development agenda health goals in Kenya

Doctorate student: Joy Chuki N. Mauti

Supervisor: Prof. Dr. Albrecht Jahn

Funding: Paul & Maria Kremer Stiftung

Description:

Health is still central to development. Health in All Policies (HiAP) is being advocated for as a more strategic approach to improve health status of populations and to combat extreme poverty in the globally agreed Post-2015 development agenda. Like many countries in Africa, Kenya was off-track in realizing the Millennium Development Goals for the period 2000-2015 having adopted it to its national policy framework –Vision 2030. Currently Kenya is in the forefront of adopting the Post-2015 development agenda and has committed to adopting the HiAP approach in her health policy document for 2014-2030. This project endeavors to evaluate how best HiAP approach can be employed by the Kenyan governments to achieve the post-2015 development agenda health goals.
